About AIC

The Agricultural Industries Confederation (AIC) is the leading trade body for the agri-supply industry.

AIC represents over 230 Member companies across several sectors, including animal feed, crop protection, fertiliser, grain and oilseeds, and seed.

AIC Member companies supply over £17bn of inputs to UK farms – the vital foundation to a £130bn plus food and drink sector industry.

Influence:

AIC is the voice of the agri-supply industry. We represent the collective views of the industry at the highest political levels of UK Government.

Assurance:

AIC manages trade assurance schemes that ensure feed and food safety, fertiliser security, seed dressing safety and renewable energy.

AIC Dinner & Conference

Established in 2003, AIC's Dinner & Conference brings together AIC Member companies, industry stakeholders, academia, and policy makers, to network, inform and influence.

AIC's Conference leads the debate on ensuring a modern sustainable commercial agricultural supply industry for food supply chains in the UK.

AIC Represents:

- 230 agribusinesses
- £17bn+ of farm inputs
- 43K direct and indirect employees
- 4K+ participants in AIC Trade Assurance schemes

Managing new global norms within the agri-food supply chain

AIC's Dinner and Conference is well respected in the agri-supply industry and with stakeholders in the food-supply chain. The conference attracts a highcalibre of speakers from the business, scientific, and political communities.

This year's conference theme, "Managing new global norms within the agri-food supply chain" will focus on the key issues facing the agri-supply industry, with prompt thought and debate via sessions throughout the day.

AIC's Dinner & Conference will take place at the Holiday Inn West, Thorpe Wood, Peterborough, PE3 6SG. There will be networking opportunities and a trade exhibition.

Partnering with the event conference gives you access to the thinkers and influencers from the agri-supply industry, including C-suite and executive-level business leaders, policymakers, and scientists.

Promoting your partnership

AIC's Dinner and Conference marketing will ensure your brand is seen by AIC Member companies and Trade Assurance participants (over 4,000 companies), plus stakeholders from the wider agri-supply and agri-food industries. Marketing activities will include email marketing, trade media advertising and targeted social media campaigns.

The conference will be chaired by

Caz Graham
