

Companies involved in the transport and physical loading of dangerous goods beyond legally defined thresholds are required to appoint a Dangerous Goods Safety Advisor (DGSA) to guide them on the legal, safety and environmental aspects. This may apply to AIC members and trade assurance participants in feed, fertiliser and crop protection sectors.

DGSAs hold a qualification in specific types of transport, for example, road transport.

The AIC DGSA Register is a benefit to AIC members and Trade Assurance Participants in that it aids finding and contacting a DGSA within a local area, with relevant specialist skills.

It is held on the AIC website and updated regularly <https://www.agindustries.org.uk/sectors/transport/transport-resources.html>

DGSAs wishing to be included should contact roberta.reeve@agindustries.org.uk

Note that under ADR 2019, the requirement to appoint a DGSA is now extended to companies who act as consignors of dangerous goods including office-based consignors. Given the significance of the changes and the potential impact on companies, a transitional provision has been implemented into ADR until 31 December 2022.

Note: AIC provides the DGSA Register as a service to its members and trade assurance participants. AIC does not accept liability for actions of individual persons or businesses listed if the DGSA services sourced here are used.
